“ My name is Ed Santos. When George started working for the Postal Service, I was his immediate supervisor. George is a very dedicated and reliable worker. People might not know but George has a very good sense of humor. One night, I was talking to George on the dock when a forklift driver approached me and said, Ed, I worked so hard I moved almost 100 pallets. When George overheard this he said, how can you overwork hard when the forklift was moving all the pallets? You're just sitting there driving. I had a good laugh and realized he was right. After retirement, we were talking about how to get fit and the discussion went to biking. He said that he bought a bike and said he could go 20 miles on the bike. We were so amazed at how he can do it and bike for more than 20 miles. I could barely bike for 10 miles. Apparently, at the end of the conversation, he said he got a motorbike and all he does is “ankas” or ride at the back. he always had a punchline and we always had a good laugh. My relationship with George blossomed from subordinate to one of my friends at work. Although I moved on with my career, we have spent several occasions together with Angie. celebrating his children Jo Ann and Anjeli's Bday when they were small , i witnessed and was part of their 18th Bday celebration when they got older. Playing basketball at San Bruno. Attended the wedding of Anjeli. When he retired, he spent a lot of years in Manila. Whenever we go home, he'll make it a point to see us. That's where we were able to meet Bianca. A few weeks ago, I was able to talk to him on the phone while he was confined at Kaiser. He was in high spirits and couldn't wait to go home. We talked about visiting him and he was excited to see us. However, after a couple of weeks, we heard his demise. There are definitely several moments that are part of my memories now with George. George, thank you for being a good husband, family man, a great father, grandfather, brother, and friend. Rest in Peace.

“Ninong George was always happy, silly, always laughing. There are lots of memories because he was always present in us four girls' lives. He would pick us up from school everyday until we learned how to drive. He asked to have some of my hot cheetos once, and he enjoyed it, so I surprised him with his own bag another day and it was nice to make him happy. He helped me catch my first fish with a string and a stick. He was big on safety and we would watch a biking safety video over and over and we loved it. Once when we still lived on Stageline, he did a trick where he drove his car (briefly and safely) along the side walk and I thought it was the coolest thing. Once when we slept at your house he made late night homemade hamburgers that were so good, I cannot replicate it to this day. There are so many other memories - camping, road trips to Reno or San Diego, etc. He's always been a positive presence and we will miss him dearly.
